Louisville musician Tim Krekel passed away at his home on Wednesday, June 24 after being diagnosed with cancer in March. He was 58 years old. Tim released eight albums during his career and wrote songs recorded by a variety of artists including Delbert McClinton, Crystal Gayle, Dr. Feelgood, Patty Loveless, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and Martina McBride just to name a few. His writings touched on all forms of music including rock, country, soul, pop and the blues. He twice toured with Jimmy Buffett and his Coral Reefer Band and played guitar on Buffett's Son of a Son of a Sailor album. Tim was a regular performer with his band TKO at Zena's Cafe. He spent the last 15 years of his life in his hometown of Louisville and was always willing to help other musicians. The photo on the left was taken at a benefit for Jim Rosen (show in the photo lower left) at the Thunderdome in November of 1997. The photo on the right was taken at Jim Porter's during a MERF benefit in November of 2007. A special fund has been established to help Tim's family with his medicals bills. Donations can be made to The Krek Fund, c/o ear X-tacy Records, 1534 Bardstown Rd, Louisville, KY, 40205

New Music Reviews!

Missy Andersen
Missy Andersen
Main Squeeze Records

Missy Andersen's self-titled debut CD is a surprise. Not exactly a household name, the San Diego, California-based Andersen will pretty much knock you over with her rich, soulful, bluesy vocals. Press material lists an extensive list of influences, and the Staples Singers are noted. Missy's voice sometimes gives a nod to Mavis, although a bit smoother--and still earthy.

The entire CD sports a "big" sound of blues, soul, gospel and funk over eight very well produced tunes, two of which are originals. She's joined by husband and lead guitarist Heine Andersen, drummer Asmus Jensen, keyboardist Jeppe Juul and bassist Soren Bojgaard, all of whom support her very well while allowing her voice to remain out front.

All eight tracks are excellent, although her energetic rendition of "Tell Mama", and the forceful "Little by Little" need to be mentioned. Perhaps the best tune, however, is the final song, one of the two originals. "Stand up and Dance," which includes a nice touch from Nathan James slide guitar, really does make you wanna stand up and dance.

Les Reynolds

Bex Marshall
Kitchen Table
 House of Mercy Records (London, UK)

First, let's get this out of the way: this is not a full-on blues recording. However, the blues numbers that are included, well, suffice to say they take blues to a new and exceptional level. Marshall, who wrote all 10 tunes on this recording, appears no stranger to heartache and pain, as much of her lyrics deal with things in life which produce those kinds of feelings. So, in that respect, this may be a bit more of a blues work than one would first think.

Bex Marshall's voice is a force to be reckoned with--not for its volume or sheer power, but for its raw, earthy, sometimes fragile, always gritty and dusky channeling of (as "Outlaw" magazine, March 2009 is quoted saying) "the ghosts of old blues women's heartaches." Her guitar skill and sound is a perfect match for her voice, as she prefers to pluck, caress and sometimes pound her instrument with cold precision and at others to pull out a ghostly wail with her slide. Whether country-blues pickin', hard strummin' or slip-slidin' up and down the fretboard, Marshall strips the skin off every tune and lays it bare. She pulls it up by the roots and lets the dirt fall to the ground.

And while it may subtract from allowing for a more complete blues classification, Marshall is joined by none other than Don Wayne and Dale Reno, brothers and sons of the late, great bluegrass musician Don Reno. Don Wayne's spooky, sparse banjo and Dale's mandolin round out a very earthy, rootsy sound and keep the tone somber and dark where it needs to be.

While the entire CD is superb, several tunes must be mentioned--and those are the mostly- or all-blues numbers. (Two other songs can be mentioned here that are not blues, but are excellent and deserve to be noted -- both are up-tempo JJ Cale-esque tunes: the opener, which is the title track, and "Too Much Rock and Roll," which includes a spooky, slinky slide.)

"Red Light" showcases Marshall's voice as a fragile, ghostly warble as she sings "Pardon me for asking, but I got nothing to loose [sic]. Did you just pass a junction, without obeying the rules. You forgot to put your belt on, it's all crashing in on you. My dear your [sic] in my headlights and I'm breaking like a fool..." On track three, "Hot Headed Man" is a toe-tapper that turns into a purr as Marshall uses her quick-pickin' country-blues guitar to quicken the pace. And the best tune on the CD is the slow lament simply titled "Black Guitar." The electric slide solos are cries in the night from the lonely man she writes about: "I knew a lonely man, his heart was broke in two. He ayed a black guitar, he sang about the blues. Every night he thinks about the way it was before; but now it'll always be just him and his guitar. ...every night he drinks whatever he can afford. He takes the black guitar and plays it for the lord." This last tune combines all that's right with this recording and creates a recipe for a piece of music guaranteed to raise the hair on your arms and leave you with an ache in your gut
