New Music Reviews!

Liz Mandeville
Clarksdale
Blue Kitty

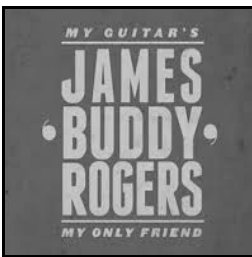

Veteran Chicago blueswoman Liz Mandeville has created a significant recording for several reasons. One, it showcases her own tunes. Two, it is the debut of a new label, Blue Kitty. And three, several tracks on the CD are the last-ever recordings from drummer and blues harpist Willie "Big Eyes" Smith, who passed away prior to a planned follow-up studio session. It was also Smith who encouraged and helped Mandeville to create the new label.

The CD is a showcase for the singer and guitarist's wit, strong vocals and confident delivery. Mandeville is also a decent guitarist in her own right, and accompanies herself quite nicely. There are other notable performances on the recording: Nick Moss - who once played in Mandeville's and Smith's bands - plays lead guitar on one track, as does tenor saxophonist Eddie Shaw. Steel and slide player Donna Herula adds some country flavor as she makes an appearance on two cuts. Overall, though, the CD is definitely blues with few exceptions - blues as only Mandeville can deliver.

With influences of soul, swing, and R&B also peppered throughout the song list, the tunes weave together threads of insight into the human condition, laced with humor, and all under the atmosphere of Clarksdale, Mississippi, where Mandeville stayed to soak up the history and deep south vibes for inspiration.

This is a CD worth having - and labeling it Blues.

James "Buddy" Rogers
My Guitar's My Only Friend
Blue Wave Records

Thirty seven year old "Buddy" Rogers is a Canadian born guitar slinger who has played professionally since he was 15. He has toured extensively with BB King's bassist and later with BB's drummer. His influences are the three Kings (BB, Albert and Freddie), Johnny Watson, and Jimmie Vaughn. These influences are evident in these cuts.

There are 10 cuts on the CD, all originals starting with the title track. The music is a mix of blues and soft rock. Rogers is an excellent guitar player but sees to it that the guitar is almost subdued in the cuts and never jumps out front of the rest of the band-there are good guitar solos but it has its place-not throughout the songs.

Overall, the music is not as bluesy as it could be, and is really closer to soft rock. The CD does have some good music on it, just not very bluesy. You should check it out at www.jamesbuddyrogers.com to listen to samples or buy the songs.

Hans Theessink
Wishing Well
Blue Groove

Folk, roots and blues, or is it roots, blues and folk, or does it really matter in which order the genres are listed? Hans Theessink, with 20 albums to his credit, has firmly established himself in each of those styles, and all are evident on his latest recording, "Wishing Well."

The Dutchman, now 65 years old and living in Austria, is a multi-instrumentalist specializing in stringed instruments, mostly the acoustic guitar. The 14 songs on this CD highlight his talents across traditional, original and covers of ballads (including one from Bob Dylan), Indian-inspired and blues/roots music. One notable guest is David Pearlman, who plays pedal steel on several of the songs. Theessink, an accomplished slide player in the Delta style, sometimes joins him in an interesting shared slide harmonic display.

Speaking of guitar, Theessink's style seems to be one of understatement: lightweight, melodic, easy-going and gentle, undergirded by his low, sometimes nearly a whisper, vocals.

All the tunes are very good, but not all, as previously noted, are blues. The ones that are favored are Delta and country. Overall, a good CD.
